FOREWORD

Just as we travel here and there along highways throughout this great world of ours, so each of us is traveling along some one of life's maze of highways. In this, our 1940 edition of HI-WAYS, we have endeavored to depict faithfully and accurately the most outstanding adventures we have encountered along the highway just passed.

DEDICATION

For giving us a good beginning and forwarding us in the right direction along this, a most important highway of life, we lovingly dedicate this 1940 edition of HI-WAYS to Mrs. J. M. Liles.

CLASS HISTORY

In the fall of 1928, we, as a group of rather shy youngsters, began our journey on the good "Hi-Way of Knowledge." Accompanied by our devoted parents, friends, and guardians, we were taken to school and placed in charge of Mrs. Liles and Miss Plunkett, who led us with much patience over the first lap of our long, difficult journey. Miss Nall and Miss Webb carried us safely through the second year. As time rolled on, the road became rough and more difficult to travel. We were led over the third road by Mrs. Gray and Miss Cameron. Miss Gulledge and Mrs. Bennett led us through the fourth lap.

After completing these four years we were very happy, indeed, because we were transferred from the grammar building to the high-school building. Every year the road seemed to broaden, but with a grim determination to broaden our knowledge also, we continued traveling. This year our teachers were Mrs. Allen and Miss Kate Leak. During our sixth lap we had advanced so far in the school of learning that we had five teachers. They were Miss Stallings, Miss Hanff, Miss Pinkston, Miss Cunningham, and Mr. DeHart. This was our first year in junior high school. We continued our junior high career with Mrs. Kanaga, Mrs. Dockery, Miss Cunningham, Miss Dunlap, and Mr. DeHart as our leaders. Now we were a proud group of boys and girls, for we received our "passports" to the Big Hi-Way, high school, on the memorable junior high commencement day in 1935.

We entered the Big Hi-Way very eager and yet rather green. The road seemed terrifying to all of the freshmen. Most of the new subjects seemed hard, but our teachers, Miss Redwine, Miss Stansell, Miss Pitts, and Mr. Snuggs led us a long and helpful way. We continued our journey but under new leaders, Miss Boles, Mrs. Meyers, Miss Abbit, and Mr. Thomas. During this lap our superintendent, Mr. F. R. Richardson, resigned his post, which was taken over for the remainder of the year by Mr. Caddell. Mr. Snuggs then became principal, the responsible position of which he still holds.

Continuing our eventful journey, we found the third year in high school a very pleasant one. We were very fortunate to have Mr. V. W. Lewis as our new superintendent, the position of great service which he still holds. Miss Daniels, Mr. Reinhardt, Miss Austin, Miss Thompson, and Mr. Wildermuth led us over this lap.

Indeed we felt our importance when we became juniors. During this year two important events took place. We presented the play "Home Ties," under the direction of Miss Thompson. Then we spent all our efforts in preparation for the junior-senior banquet, which turned out very successful. We were directed through this lap by Miss Davis, Miss Johnson, Miss Trott, Mrs. Reinhardt, Miss Hinson, Mr. Hicks, and Mr. Wildermuth.

With all the seniors combined into one class, we are all very happy to have Miss Eva Holder as our devoted home-room teacher. Mr. Howell, Mr. Wildermuth, Mrs. Morris, Miss Spence, Mr. Snuggs, and Miss Morris are also very helpful to us.

Now, facing graduation, we see not the end of our journey, but the beginning. We, the senior class of 1940, will forever cherish the happy and successful days we have spent in the Wadesboro School.

—FRANCES GRAY, Historian.

CLASS POEM

(Apologies to Robert Cameron Rogers)

The hours we've spent in thee dear school,
Are as a string of pearls to us;
We live them over every one apart
Our high-school days, our high-school days.

Each day a pearl of priceless worth
To treasure all our whole lives thru;
We gather them, a shining strand,
And hold them close—caressingly.

Oh, memories that bless and burn!
Oh days that pass in ecstasy!
We count each one and strive, at last, to learn
To say goodbye, classmates, to say boodbye.

—CORNEILLE CARAWAY.

CLASS SONG

(Tune of "We've Come A Long Way Together")

We've come a long way together,
Since we met on our first day at school;
We've mastered all kinds of lessons
And we've learned how to keep every rule;
And now tho' our days here are over
We never shall forget our friends sincere;
We'll keep our hearts linked together
By the joys and the friends we knew here.

We've studied hard and we've conquered.
Every lesson we've had has been learned;
And we've had all kinds of pleasure
The good times here have never been spurned.
We leave all our love to our teachers,
Who from the first days our footsteps have led,
And we shall love them forever,
When along our life's pathway we tread.

We're ready now to get started
On the life that we each have to live;
We've learned the rules of good sportsmen
And some service we each yearn to give.
Don't think that our school days are over;
We'll study hard to keep our minds aglow;
We've come a long way together
And we still have a long way to go.

—MARY EVELYN MORRIS.

- 2—Ah-h-h-h! The studious seniors!
- 3—Sherman's a' comin'!
- 4—"N Pat just couldn't understand it . . .
- 5—"Pr-ooo-oo-o-une!"
- 6—Nope, can't quite make it, Nancy!
- 7—Hm-m-m-m-----very serious bull session.

CLASS PROPHECY

The very name held a fascination for me—Madame Zuski, Crystal Gazer. Indeed, I was so attracted that before long I found myself entering the narrow doorway over which the sign with these words hung. In an effort to occupy myself until my train was due, I would have my fortune told. However, even as I was ushered into the dimly-lighted room where I made out an old woman seated before a crystal ball, a new plan formulated in my mind. Through the magic crystal, I would attempt to renew acquaintances with my friends and classmates of that world-famous center of learning and activity, Wadesboro High School.

When I explained by mission to the old woman, she nodded and mumbled a few words to her magic crystal ball. Then, before me on the surface of the ball, I saw appearing a vision of the old home town, Wadesboro. The scene soon narrowed down to the swanky, new Fritz-Ritz Hotel, owned by Fritzie Mills, where the new king of swing, Percy Beacham and his orchestra, featuring Lib Williamson at the piano, was packing 'em in. Close scrutiny revealed that the success of this hotel was largely due to the efforts of the hostess, Mary Evelyn Morris, and the Chief Bell Hop and Personnel Director, J. Mack Coley.

The picture changed to one of a large building near the center of town, where I found Harvey Leavitt the managing editor of the big daily, The Daily Jabber, with Bob Huntley and Leaky "Scoop" Wyatt occupying the positions of star reporters. Daily features of this paper were a society column by Corneille Caraway and a column on accredited ways and means of solving the problems of the heart by Flora Ann Brock.

Next, into view came the old school-house itself. Here, serving as a truant-catching principal, was none other than Jerry Ingram, while effective by performing the almost impossible task of imparting knowledge to the younger generation were Frances Gray and Ruth Waddell.

The last place in Wadesboro that I visited through the crystal was the interior of the new hospital, where I perceived three uniformed nurses apparently engaged in a free-for-all. Imagine my surprise when, as the vision became clearer, I discovered that the three were none other than Virginia Dunlap, Nancy Gathings, and Patsy Teal, fighting for possession of the new masculine patient located in room 47! Also located here were Edna Gilmore and Joyce Atkinson, who were ably filling the positions of laboratory technician and dietitian.

At this point, the scene shifted towards a thriving metropolis, pausing long enough, however, for me to look in on a huge experimental farm not far out of town, where Jimmy Burns, Alvin Bates, and Jack Shaver were startling the agricultural wor'd with their amazing discoveries.

On the outskirts of the city, I saw a large plant where R. I. Ballard and Charlie Pigg were directing the assembly of a new type of automobile constructed of new materials produced by the super-chemist, Walter Mangum.

I was amazed when, with the life and activity of the big city coming into view, I noticed a surprising lack of slums. This was due, as I later learned, to a slum-clearance project headed by social workers James Treadaway, Kathryn Niven, and Emma Smith.

As the vision changed again, I found myself in the heart of the business district in the offices of the industrial magnate, Bud Brower. Bud, who was methodically engaged in chewing what looked to be a fifty-cent cigar, was in conference along with his secretary, Edith Odom, with two interior decorators who had arrived to refurnish his offices. These two turned out to be the famous team, Atkinson and Sauls (Mae and Ellender).

Not far from here was the super-exclusive dress shop of Sadie Bowman and Lou Hardison, where modern creations were designed by Teen Dunlap and modeled by a group of girls including Sister and Louise Huntley.

My last stop in the city was at a modern, well-equipped Y. W. C. A., where six graduates of W. H. S. were leaders and directors in the various activities. Nell McIntosh and Dorothy Lewis were coaching a championship basketball team in the physical education department, Elizabeth Chewning and Ethel Scarboro were instructing a group in home economics, and Mary Fannie Lineberry and Mary Jane Carter were directing a recreational program.

This completed a check on my former classmates. As I left the room, I realized that my train had already left, but I did not regret the time spent with the magic crystal, for I left a little wiser and more than a little proud of the achievements of those whom I could call my friends.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

I, Alva M. Beacham, of the County of Anson and State of North Carolina, representing the senior class of 1940 of Wadesboro High School, on this eighth day of June, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and forty, considering myself to be of sound, but crammed, mind and memory, realizing that my days are numbered in this our Alma Mater and possessing the knowledge that the time when I shall pass into a higher field of learning is near at hand, do hereby make and declare this to be my last will and testament.

I. To the very lenient and understanding faculty I leave the peace of mind which, I am sure, will follow the passing of the seniors' homely countenances into the worlds beyond.

II. To Miss Holder I leave all the happiness in the world as part payment for all the jams she has helped the seniors through.

III. To the boys who congregate back of the building at recess I leave my last pack of cigarettes with the sincere hope that it stops the wave of "duck" shooting and bumming for a while, at least.

IV. To Mr. Cartier I leave one soft pedal to aid him in making the band play pianissimo instead of triple forte.

V. To Lee Hendley I leave Fred Mills' voice. Maybe it will make his continuous loud-mouthed chatter a little easier on the ears.

VI. To Evalyn Allen I leave Mack Coley's height so she can look up to the men instead of down on them.

VII. To Harvey Matheson I leave Bob Huntley's speed with the women.

VIII. To P. D. Lyon I leave Nub Rose's physique plus his cuteness and heart-breaking personality.

IX. To Margaret Haire I leave C. B. Pressler in all his handsome glory.

X. To Lucy Mitchell I leave May Robson Morris's knowledge of histrionics.

XI. To Frances Allen I leave Lib Williamson's sure-fire method of giving the men heart trouble.

- 1—Oh! Aren't they beautiful!
- 2—May Day! How typically Southern!
- 3—Tch! Tch! Such cute pippie!!
- 4—Hurry up 'n snap th' thing . . . I'm gonna fall!
- 5—More May Day . . .
- 6—Press forward!!!
- 7—Oh, I remember that one . . . 150 yards!
- 8—Senior play . . . just before . . .
- 9—My starrrs! Some jobs!!
- 10—More dignified seniors . . . tch! tch!

XII. To Doots Hightower I leave Jack Shaver's dignity and ability to keep his mouth shut.

XIII. To Charles Allen I leave Leaky Wyatt's poker face so he can keep Meta from knowing about his other women.

XIV. To Holmes Gray I leave Charlie Pigg's dependability as a sports manager.

XV. To Lawyer Pruette I leave Kenny Baker Brower's lovely tenor voice.

XVI. To Josephine Jones I leave all of Louise Huntley's love.

XVII. To Frances Manship I leave Mary Jane Carter's figure.

XVIII. To Cornelia Griggs I leave Teen Dunlap's charming personality to help her catch her man.

XIX. To Elizabeth Bennett I leave Ellender Sauls' figure—to be hidden safely in the attic in case Sherman should come through again.

XX. To Libby Colman I leave Sadie Bowman's powder puff so she can cover up her bashful lily white delicate blushing countenance.

I hereby make, ordain, and appoint my two stooges, Mack Coley and Pat Teal, executors to this the last will and testament of the senior class of 1940, in testimony of which I hereunto set my hand and seal on the day and year above written.

MAY DAY

MAY 16, 1940

For the second year, instead of having formal class day exercises, the class of 1940 presented a May Day Celebration. The queen, maid of honor, and attendants were elected from the class, and students from all classes participated in the exercises. This May Day followed the manner of celebration originated by the Southerners in the days before the War Between the States. Families of neighboring plantations celebrated May Day at one plantation, honoring the most beautiful girls of the neighborhood.

The colonel of the plantation acted as master of ceremonies and everyone—young people and old—participated in the dances and festivities.

The class endeavored to follow this manner of celebration, and Mabel Huntley was crowned Queen of the May. Louise Huntley was Maid of Honor and Ellender Sauls, Armantine Dunlap, Virginia Dunlap, Mary Fannie Lineberry, Elizabeth Williamson, Corneille Caraway, Nancy Gathings, and Kathryn Niven were the Queen's attendants.

THE WADESBORO HIGH SCHOOL BAND

The Wadesboro High School band was organized in June, 1939. Its members assembled every morning at nine o'clock and worked steadily until eleven. All enjoyed their work even though it was tedious. The people of Wadesboro, before school began, were entertained twice by band concerts.

At the beginning of school the mothers of the band members and the members themselves began the difficult task of raising money to buy uniforms. Through perseverance and hard work the task was finally completed, and at the end of the school year the band had a total of approximately sixty uniforms.

Accompanying the football team, Wadesboro's band made excellent showings at Rockingham, Winston-Salem, and Charlotte.

On April 29, after much practice, this group entered the district contest at Salisbury and won a second rating, which entitled them to go to Greensboro to the state contest. At Greensboro they also received a second rating, which was the highest rating given a class D band. This entitled them to enter the National Contest at West Palm Beach, Florida.

Wadesboro is indeed proud of the record the band has made during its first year of existence.

ATHLETICS AT WADESBORO HIGH SCHOOL

The chief extra-curricular activity of the Wadesboro High School students is athletics. The school has an able director of athletics, Coach "Pop" Howell, with Mr. W. L. Wildermuth as assistant.

Wadesboro's dominant sport is football. During the last few years Wadesboro's opponents have been among the best teams of both North and South Carolina. The Wadesboro "Tigers," finding their stride at the end of the season, downed Tech High of Charlotte, Rockingham, and Asheboro in succession. The team also defeated Badin in the first game of the season, but suffered a slump in which it lost six close games straight to Hamlet, Gaffney, Belmont, Troy, Hanes High of Winston-Salem, and Harding High of Charlotte. Wadesboro's record stands as four victories against six defeats.

Wadesboro's captain "Pee Dee" Hough played in the annual high-school all-star game at Charlotte, following in the steps of the other outstanding Wadesboro players who have played in this annual classic.

With the winter came basketball. The girls, coached by Mr. Wildermuth, made an impressive record of eleven victories to one defeat. They remained undefeated until the last game of the season, when Monroe defeated Wadesboro 18-21. Although the boys, coached by Mr. Howell, did not make a record as outstanding as the girls', they gave a good account of themselves in every game. Their record stands at eight wins against four losses.

In the spring the baseball team made a good showing under the direction of Coach Howell. When Hi-Ways went to press the team had won three games and lost two.

The athletic program of Wadesboro High is one of which every student and faculty member can be justly proud. The players show true sportsmanship and ability. With good coaching, determination of the players, and support of the students and the faculty, Wadesboro High is moving out and making a name for itself in the world of sports.
